General (taken from materials produced by administrator)	Promulgated in 1992, revised in 2000 and 2005; rules provide for non-administered (ad hoc) arbitration of international disputes; provide procedures to facilitate the conduct of international arbitration fairly, expeditiously and economically and producing just and enforceable awards; designed to be easily comprehended and are intended, in particular, for the complex international cases. CPR's role as neutral organization is limited to instances when it is necessary to break an impasse in the proceedings.	In force from 1/1/98. The ICC International Court of Arbitration is the arbitration body of the International Chamber of Commerce. The role of the ICC Court is to ensure the application of the ICC Rules of Arbitration in cases administered by the ICC. It plays a key role in the appointment and confirmation of arbitrators, fixing arbitrators' fees and scrutinizing awards. Its Secretariat is located in Paris.	Current version of rules is 2003. Rules provide for administered arbitration of international disputes. Rules for appointment of arbs provide a flexible procedure encouraging the fullest measure of party autonomy in the appointment process, while assuring that the ICDR is available to act if the parties cannot reach mutual agreement. The rules are intended to provide effective and economical arbitration services to the global business community.	Current version of rules is 1998.	Adopted in 1976 by the General Assembly of the United Nations and recommended for inclusion in international commercial contracts. Intended to provide a comprehensive, flexible and universal set of procedural rules which parties may select for the conduct of ad hoc arbitral proceedings arising out of their commercial relationship. Widely used and discussed in academic circles.

Number of Arbitrators	Three arbs unless parties have agreed in writing to a single arb. (R5.1)	Absent agreement of the parties, sole arb unless it appears to the ICC Court that the dispute is such as to warrant the appointment of 3 arbs. (Art. 8 (2)) This is a flexible and efficient standard.	Absent agreement of the parties, one arbitrator unless administrator determines three to be appropriate because of the size, complexity or other circumstances of the case. (Art. 5)	Sole arb appointed unless parties have agreed to three arbs or LCIA determines that a three member tribunal is appropriate "in view of all the circumstances of the case." (Art. 5.4)	Three arbs unless parties agree to a single arb no later than 15 days following, commencement (Art. 5) Can result in inefficiency.
Selection	Deference given to self selection. If single arb or three neutral arbs, by agreement of the parties or, if none, by the Neutral Organization. (R 5.3, 6.1) If there are to be two party appointed arbs, the two party arbs appoint the third, who shall be the chair. The Neutral Organization may be CPR but not necessarily) resolves an impasse between the party arbs if necessary as in the case of a single arb. (R 5.2) Except where a party fails to participate in the list procedure, or if a party did not appoint 'party-appointed' arbitrator, the Neutral Organization shall submit arb candidate list to the parties for ranking by the parties prior making the appointment (R.6.4, 6.5). More than one Claimant or Respondent (R.5.4) CPR serves as Neutral Organization if parties have not agreed on one. (R 6.1)	ICC Court may appoint or confirm arbs. Process works through the ICC Secretariat and then the ICC Court. In one arb cases, if the parties cannot agree on the Arb, the ICC Court appoints the arb. Subject to party agreement to another procedure, in three arb cases, each party submits a candidate for confirmation. The chair is appointed by the ICC Court. Nationalities, residences and other relationships with the countries of which the parties or the other arbitrators are nationals are considered, as is the ability to conduct the arbitration in accordance with the Rules. Sole arbitrators and chairs must be of a nationality other than those of the parties. Party appointees must file a Statement of Independence. (Art. 9)	Agreement of the parties or, after 45 days, upon request of any party, all arbs or neutral presiding arb shall be appointed by Administrator. (Art. 6)	Appointments are made by the LCIA. "Due regard" for the "particular method or criteria of selection agreed in writing by the parties" is given. (Art. 5.5) The chair of three-member tribunals will be appointed by the LCIA. (Art. 5.6) Sole arb or chair shall not have the same nationality of a party unless the parties not of the same nationality agree otherwise in writing. (Art. 6.1)	Deference given to self selection. If single arb, by agreement of the parties or, if none, by an appointing authority selected by the parties or, if none, by the by the Secretary-General of the Permanent Court of Arbitration at The Hague. Parties receive lists of proposed arbs and candidates may be objected to. (Art 6) If three arbs, each party appoints an arb and the two party arbitrators select the third, who becomes the presiding arb. The appointing authority resolves an impasse between the party arbs as in the case of a single arb. (Art. 7)
